Dear Parents, Patrons, and Friends of Heartland Community Schools,

Volunteers are an important part of any organization. As we begin a new calendar year, I would like to challenge many of you to give of your time to help others. We are fortunate at Heartland for the many volunteers who help us out. As we reflect on the past year, it is almost unbelievable what we have accomplished on the track and football field with all of the volunteer labor that we have had. The many hours that Alan Janzen, Randy Ratzlaff, Dr. Jim Ohrt, and Larry Vancura gave to the project was a tremendous benefit. The many individuals who gave of their time helped us complete a project that would not have been possible without their help. The cost was high, and probably would not have been doable if not for the many hours of volunteering that took place.

I am also thankful for the many hours that volunteers give on a daily or weekly basis. We have five individuals who volunteer in the cafeteria one day a week. We have individuals who come in and listen to elementary students read and assist in the classrooms. Many mothers serve as room mothers at the elementary grades, many volunteer through the elementary parent teacher's organization. Others serve team meals to the athletes and assist with different school events. We have volunteers serving on the band parents, the booster club, and many other organizations. Thanks to all of you who have volunteered your time this past year and continue to give of yourself. It is a real asset to the school and especially to the individual students.

I would like to challenge more of you to get involved and volunteer your time. The rewards are great and the opportunity to serve the youth of our community is a vote for the future. If you have any interest in volunteering, please contact Mrs. Cindy Huebert, who serves as our volunteer coordinator. We have many volunteers, but it would be great if we could double that number.

I hope each one of you have a wonderful and prosperous 2010!

Sincerely,
Dr. Norm Yoder, Superintendent

SCHOOL CLOSING INFORMATION

As the winter approaches, occasional bad weather necessitates the closing of school for the safety of our students. School closing information will be announced over the radio station KAWL (1370), and television stations KHAS, KLKN, NTV and KOLN. In Henderson it will be announced with voiceover capabilities on any cable channel (in town) when your TV is on. This year we are implementing an automated phone message service through School Reach which we plan on using for school closings. You may also call our school closing phone line at 402-723-4421. If a decision has been made the night before, the closing will be announced at 10:00PM. In the mornings it will be announced on the half hour from 6:30AM to 8:00AM (cable only).

NATIONAL SCHOOL BOARD RECOGNITION

Nebraska School Board Recognition Week is January 17-23. Please take time to thank the Heartland Board of Education members for the many hours they spend serving the educational needs of the Heartland School District. They are Gary Braun, president; Paul Brune, vice president; Deb Wilhelm, secretary; Mark Dick, treasurer; Kerri Kliever, and Galen Friesen. Their service is very much appreciated.

The Heartland Board was again recognized this year by receiving the Outstanding Board Award by the Nebraska Association of School Boards. This award is achieved by a point system. Points are awarded for the board having involvement in workshops, conferences, and board retreats. Congratulations to each of the members for their accomplishments.

KEEP INFORMED

The Weekly Roundup, which list school activities for the week can be accessed on the Heartland web page by clicking on the Huskie

Huddle News tab, or by clicking the link under Current Highlights.

The Elementary Art Workshop had a great turnout of forty-nine enthusiastic kindergarten through fourth grade. Each student created a clay Christmas ornament as a gift for someone special. The first session the students constructed the ornaments and the second they painted them. During the basketball games, Art Club members are working at the concessions stand as a fundraiser to raise money for a visit to an art gallery.

HOLIDAY FOOD DRIVE

This year the National Honor Society again sponsored a food drive to benefit individuals and families within our school district who can use a gift of food. This project is one of several school and community service projects that NHS students plan and carry out. The theme of this year's food drive was, "Spread some cheer, Give this year!" The NHS thanks all of the students and their parents as well as the staff who gave cheerfully and generously. Food was collected over 10 days in a different category for each day. Enough food was collected to serve 37 individuals and families in the Heartland district. NHS students collected the food daily and boxed and delivered the food on Saturday, December 19.

A special thanks to Margalee Thomas and to Marc and Carrie Regier who contributed donations of $50.00 each. This money, as well as the profits from the sale of Bingo cards for a game played in school each day, will be used to buy gift certificates to the Henderson Food Mart for some of the recipients of the food boxes.

May you all be blessed for sharing your abundance to serve others; this is truly the definition of "community." Merry Christmas!

Kids can't grow up responsibly if parents don't show them how

You probably know some people who've never quite grown up. They may have jobs, but never seem to be able to live on their own.

One reason may be that they didn't learn how to take on the responsibilities of adult life. Their parents may not have taught them the skills they need--to balance a budget or to take care of basic life skills like cooking or doing laundry.

If you want your child to grow up and live as an independent adult, you need to start teaching him those skills today. Here are some ways you can help your child develop the habits that will get him ready for adult life:

- Expect him to get himself up in the morning. Even a first grader can learn to wake up to an alarm.
- Teach him to care for his own clothes. Young children can put clothes in the laundry basket. They can fold their own clothes and put them away. Older kids can learn how to do laundry.
- Help him manage money. Whether it's an allowance or payment for extra chores, teach your child the value of saving.
- Enlist his help. Every family member should do something that helps out the family. Young children can set the table. Older kids can learn how to prepare a simple meal. When they do these things, thank them for making your home run more smoothly.
- Volunteer. Make time for your family to volunteer together. Doing something for others builds responsibility.

What can you do to make sure your child is listening to you?

You've talked and talked. But you feel like a television set with the volume turned down--your child just isn't listening.

Nothing is so frustrating to parents. But there are things you can do to make sure your child listens when you have something important to say.

To get your child to listen, try these two strategies:

1. Make eye contact. If your child's eyes are on the TV set, her brain is there, too. So calmly say, "Peyton, I need to say something to you. Could you look at me, please?" Remember: If you shout, "Look at me when I'm talking to you," your child is likely to just tune you out!
2. Remember that less is sometimes more. Keep your instructions short and simple. It's best to give no more than two steps at a time. "Please pick up the books and put them on the shelf." Any more than that and your child is likely to forget what you've asked.

Does my child's attendance really matter?

"Does it really matter if my child misses school?" parents wonder. "Yes!" say experts. Research shows that regular attendance is linked to current and future school success. When kids miss too much school, they miss more than daily lessons. They miss the chance to build social and academic foundations that help with future learning.

To minimize attendance issues:

- Remember that excused and unexcused absences take a toll on learning. Keep track of how often your child is absent or tardy. In general, if a child is out of school 10% or more of the year, absences are considered particularly serious.
- Keep the school calendar handy when making plans. Schedule appointments and trips when school isn't in session. If your child needs to miss school, talk with the teacher.
- Tell school officials about problems that lead to absences. Many families face challenges with health, transportation, child care and other issues. Community programs may be able to help.
- Avoid unnecessary absences by establishing family routines that make life easier. Small changes, such as organizing school supplies at night and getting enough sleep, can make a big difference.

Your family's good habits lead to your child's good attendance

Kids are tardy for all kinds of reasons, such as missing the bus, oversleeping and being unable to find something important. Some tardies are unavoidable, of course. But others are easily prevented with daily habits, such as:

- Study routines. Do homework at the same time, and in the same place, each day. Have your child double-check her schoolbag for anything you need to read or sign. When study time is over, pack the bag and put it by the front door.
- Nighttime routines. Stick to a regular bedtime each night. Kids might brush teeth, find the next day's outfit and put on pajamas, while parents pack lunches, set alarm clocks and tuck in kids. Any late-evening activities should be relaxing, such as listening to music or reading.
- Morning routines. Post a checklist of responsibilities, such as getting dressed, having breakfast and brushing teeth. Parents must stay on schedule, too, so their work (making breakfast, driving to school, etc.) supports their child's success.
